Thinking Out Loud

By H. M. L.

The poor showing of 260 votes cast out of a possible 1,000 entitled to vote on the school bonds, reflects an apathy in public affairs that, applied to the national field, explains much of the waste and incompetence we all endure in government. The fact that the school bonds were voted, even though by a slight margin, is a matter of rejoicing to all those who have children in the schools, and also to those who have the interests of the school at heart.

For many years Nevada City worried along with the school building that accomodated the grandfathers of the present generation. The structure was of wood and even though constant repairs were made and painting done, it had long since lost out in the modern race. Other towns boasted attractive buildings, fireproof, convenient, well lighted, and with all sanitary equipment. This building whose chief virtue was its historic character, is gone, and in its place are two of the best school plants in the Sierras. It is something to be proud of and something that no one with civic pride will begrudge paying for in taxes.

The quality of the instruction in the old school buildings, however, was generally of the best. We could name a long list of distinguished men and women who have gone out of the old Washington School to become men of great service to California, and for that matter the United States. And now that we have the buildings, the last word in modern educational structures, all attention can be given to maintaining the high standards that in the old days brought honor to Nevada City and its schools. We offer no criticism of the staff in the two schools. But with the new set-up we believe that the youth of the city will be better served of the superintendent of schools is permitted to choose from among the applicants, whenever a vacancy occurs, and is held responsible for the character and ability of the teachers. One trained school man should be a better judge of teacher applicants than seven business men.

The sole criterion of a teacher should be his or her ability truly to educate the children, to make them think, to inspire them, to inculcate diligence in their studies, to cultivate and improve character, to take, in short, the clay of youth and mold it into sturdy and serviceable vessels for social use in adult years. How many men or women of fifty years or more can remember the names and personalities of the teachers they had in school. Few can remember all of them. But those teachers who checked bad manners, who recognized talent in whatever direction it lay, who rebuked attempts to cheat in examinations, who inspired them to do their level best in every task, who taught them to be fair in word and action—the names of these are remembered and venerated. The kindly patience with young exuberance and enthusiasm, with careless mistakes and hours wasted, with all the vagaries that torment the adolescent—this is a virture that good teachers always possess.

It was a graduating class in a Kansas school that sensing the general difficulty of obtaining employment put up this placard in the school yard: "WPA, here we come!" It is a bit comic, but its implications are tragic. We educate our children for what? For a useful life of course. But too many nowadays find nothing to do when they complete their schooling. It is condition that the schools themselves may do much to cure. Boys and girls should be taught to take hold of any honest work. Any useful work is far more dignified than loafing. The humblest job may be the door to a better job. It lies with parents first and schools second to teach boys and girls that good character and an honest desire to earn a living, to save a little, to help others as much as may be, can win a secure place in life for them. In Nevada City there are many such examples of young people who are succeeding in finding a place to work. Their feet are on the bottom rung, and the ladder reaches upward beyond the mind's eye.

DICK RAFFERTY TELLS ROTARY OF KLAMATH FIRE

The Rotary club heard an interesting description yesterday by Dick Rafferty, fire prevention officer of the local Forest Service, of the devastating fires which took place between July 13 and 21 in the Klamath forest area. Rafferty was one of those called from the Tahoe headquarters here to fight fire in the Klamath Forest. He went as a camp boss to one of the most inaccessible parts of the region and had charge of men varying in number from 25 to 100.

These fire fighters, it was the duty of Mr. Rafferty to provide with food and blankets. Food was dropped from airplanes with small parachutes and owing to the rough terrain was sometimes hard to retrieve. Eggs generally were broken. One case of eggs was lodged in the top of a tree, the tree was felled, and the top crashed through the eggs, making a large omelet.

By means of radio the various camps located at strategic points along the battle line kept in close touch with headquarters and the war with flames was ably directed from a central headquarters.

Rafferty left by plane from the McBoyle airport. The Forest Service used a number of planes in the recent far flung fires of Trinity and Klamath forests. Rafferty stated that in Montana the forest service not only drops food from planes to fire fighters but drops men along the line of scrimmage, where needed.

A comprehensive story of the forest fires in northern California during July will be found an another page in this issue.

NEVADA CITY PARTY TRAVELS 6,886 MILES

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Vanberg, and daughter and son, Miss Eleanor Vanberg and Robert Vanberg returned Sunday from a six weeks auto trip that took them to Minnesota and they traveled 6886 miles. The party went to Washington state first to visit two sons and from there went east. In Markette, Michigan, they visited Mrs. Vanberg's sister whom she had not seen in 33 years and two brothers and a sister of Mr. Vanberg whom he had not seen in 45 years. The weather was fine and the roads were in good condition. In South Dakota grass hoppers were devouring crops and in Utah and Nevada states crickets were a pest. Highway crews had piled crickets along the highways in long rows several inches deep. Motorists were warned to drive slowly where these insest pests were over the highways.

WOODRUFF MINE TAKES OUT ORE

WOODRUFF

Earl D. Woodruff and brother Dawn Woodruff have developed their 562 acre mining property above Jones Bar on the South Yuba river until it is showing fine promise. They have installed a five ton mill and two leasors both experienced miners on the property are taking out ore. Woodruff brothers have sung over a 50 foot shaft and drifted on the ledge. Latest plans are to sink 50 feet deeper and again drift to develop more ore. A well defined ledge on the property is 40 feet wide and the men have uncovered three large ledges full of sulphides. Ore is being mined from a vein that pitches north. The Woodruffs have a property that is one half mile wide and one and a half miles long giving a splendid property to develop and operate. This ground is north of Nevada City and not far from the Downieville highway bridge over the South Yuba river. Woodruff brothers have been developing this property for several years.

Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Coughlan and several family members are planning to attend the big home coming celebration at Forest next Saturday and Sunday. This is an annual event and begins with a dance Saturday evening and a day filled with sports events throughout the next day. Mr. Coughlan owns a mine in the Forest area.

DISTRICT FAIR TO OPEN OCT. 21

At a directors meeting of the 17th Agricultural District in Grass Valley Monday evening it was decided to hold the coming fair on October 21, 22 and 23, in Memorial building and the large lot in the rear.

The possibility of holding a horse show in connection with the Nevada County Fair is also being considered and Tevis Paine, horsemen of Sacramento, will be consulted as to space required for this feature.

While agricultural products will be displayed in the building the animal industry show will be held at the same time in the rear on the lot.

It is also planned to consider holding the Quartz Gold Discovery celebration at the same time.

Coughlan, a brother of Supervisor Jay Coughlan. W. J. Coughlan is the complaining witness and the arrests were made on a charge of trespassing.

DISTRICT ROTARY MEET AT QUINCY

QUINCY, Aug. 11. — The Sacramento Bee states that Quincy streets are decorated in festive colors and flags of all nations symbolic of Rotary International as the city prepared to be host to the opening session of clubs in District 105. The convention will end on Sunday.

According to District Attorney Joseph Burroughs of Oakland, the district includes forty four clubs in Superior California and Nevada.

The Quincy club of thirty two members has charge of the arrangements. C. B. Radson, secretary of the Berkeley Rotary Club and conference manager for District 105, has been in Quincy for the last week completing details.

Registration will be held this evening and the assembly will be called to order in the high school auditorium. The day will be given over to addresses by Harry Jones of the Oakland Rotary Club; Harvey B. Lyon, Charles Heywood, both past district governors, and Herbert K. Walton, past international director.

Tomorrow evening also will be marked by a banquet at the Hotel Quincy and an individual dance at the American Legion hall.

Saturday morning will be given over to an address by Thomas Crowe district governor of District 106 after which the clubs will separate for group meetings.

Oscar Odegaard of the Nevada City Rotary and Harold Robinson of the Grass Valley Rotary left yesterday to attend the conclave. Mrs. Odegaard accompanied her husband.

HISTORIC EL DORADO HOTEL BURNS TO GROUND

The Old Six Mile House east of Placerville famous stopping place for the early day traveler, has been destroyed by fire. It is believed a defective flue started the blaze.

Although the fire was noticed immediately by the lookout at Mt. Danaher the building was a mass of flames when a fire truck reached the scene.

The building was owned jointly by Albert Rupley and J. Wiley.

AWAY AUG. 30? GET ABSENTEE BALLOT FIRST

Going to be away on your vacation election day, August 30?

Then here is how you can vote in spite of the vacation.

Call personally your county clerk or write to him for an application blank for an absentee voters ballot. He'll send you a blank and you may vote anytime up until August 25.

If the ballot is cast before the clerk you won't have to have it notarized. Otherwise, there will be a small fee. So the simplest method is to go to your county clerk and tell him your vacation plans.

He may tell you about the big ones that got away while he was on his vacation or about the big ones he is going to catch this year but he'll take care of your election needs.

Complete instructions on how the ballot should be made out will be sent any person applying to their county clerk by letter.

If there is more than one member in a family wishing an absentee ballot, the letter should so state and all members wishing one should sign the application letter.

The Merriam-for-governor headquarters urged in a statement today that all Republican voters who by reason of vacations, business or physical disability could not be at the polls August 30 to apply for absentee ballots immediately.

MERRIAM AND OLSON IN FRONT

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 11.—State Senator Bulbert L. Olson and Governor Merriam are leading the field in the race for governor.

That's the consensus in Southern California's nine populous counties as the candidates end preparations for the last hectic five weeks of the primary election campaign.

Sheriff Murphy, San Francisco is the only candidate given a chance of outdistancing Mr. Olson for the Democratic omination. And to do that Mr. Murphy must inject much more life into his campaign than has so far been displayed.

There is a general feeling here that Governor Merriam will run contrary to the rule, relating to renominating governors. It is nothing tangible. In fact there is nothing authoritive to support the idea that Mr. Olson and Governor Merriam are out in front beyond the fact that the voters talk that way and the belief that the people generally vote the way they talk.

The Olson campaign seems the best organized and best financed in the Democratic contest. If the former EPIC's cautious, moderate utterances sound strange to his leftist supporters they are saying nothing about it. Equally silent is his comparative handful of conservative backing.

Democrats generally agree Sheriff Murphy, if nominated, would be easier to elect than Senator Olson. A defeatist complex among his campaigners, coupled with a strange apathetic attitude, appear to be his worst drawbacks.

There is a lack of campaign funds too, but that wouldn't hurt so much if the Murphys in boosting their man didn't predict his defeat in the next breath.

Republicans are helping build this psychological obstacle, for the G. O. P. leadership acknowledges informally Mr. Murphy, the middle of the road liberal, would be much harder to beat in the November runoff than Mr. Olson, whose radical background makes him a better target.

The best Murphy campaigners are unorganized. They are found among school teachers and public school groups. The teachers generally are for Mr. Murphy because he has been their friend during his many years as a member of the San Francisco and State Boards of Education. The San Francisco sheriff has continued as chairman of the State Board of Education despite his opposition to the re-election of Governor Merriam. As school board head Mr. Murphy is one of the governor's appointees.

Mrs. Belle Douglass has just returned from a short vacation in San Francisco. While there she was a guest of Miss Elizabeth Richards, former Nevada county superintendent of schools.

CHAMBER SELLS STATE FAIR SCRIPT BOOKS

The Nevada City Chamber of Commerce is engaged in selling to all those who desire to save money on their state fair admissions script books containing 10 admission tickets for $2.50. To those who attend the big annual event in Sacramento with friends or their families, this price of 25c per admission will save them half the usual gate cost.

PLANS APPROVED FOR TWO JUNIOR COLLEGE UNITS

The board of trustees of Placer Junior College have approved the plans and specifications drawn by Masten and Hurd, architects of San Francisco, for the two new units of the college plant at Auburn to be constructed this fall.

The buildings are financed by a direct tax of $55,000 raised this year inside the Placer Union High School district and a $45,000 grant obtained from the Public Works Administration.

The first unit of the plant was built last fall. It is known as the class room building. The units to be constructed this fall are a science unit and an administration and class room building.

Dr. John H. Napier, Jr. district superintendent, expects the two new units to be ready for the opening of the second semester of the 1938-1939 school year in January.

The buildings are located on a seven acre campus site purchased last year.

COLLEGE MINE DEPT. HEAD WILL CONDUCT TOUR

Harold M. Weaver, recently named to head the mining department of Placer Junior College, has been granted permission by the board of trustees of the school to conduct a 2,000 mile journey next Spring for students who are in the second semester of geological sciences.

Weaver is planning a trip that will include stops in Nevada, Arizona,, New Mexico, and California. It will last ten days.

The purpose of the tour is to offer the students an opportunity to study geology in the field. Weaver says no area in the United States offers as many diversified subjects for the given mileage as the four states to be visited.

A tentative route includes an initial visit to the silver mines of Virginia City, Nevada, followed by stops at Tonopah, Goldfield, Beatty, Las Vegas, Boulder Dam, Kingman, Ariz. and into the Grand Canyon.

The United Verde Copper Mines will be visited to see the furnaces and smelters in operation. The return trip will include inspection of the gold mines of Inyo county, Cal.

Weaver, a graduate of the Colorado School of Mines at Golden, went to Auburn from Reedly Junior College, where he taught mining courses last year.

POOL TOO MURKY SAYS RED CROSS EXAMINER

George Hughling of San Francisco, Red Cross first aid and life saving examiner yesterday gave Verle Gray, life guard at the municipal pool in Pioneers park an examination and also inspected the pool. Safety factors in the pool he found generally good except that the water in the deep end was too murky to permit seeing the bottom, which is generally considered vital in all public swimming pools. Gray easily passed his examination.

C. B. O'Connor, Jr., and wife who arrived from South America recently spent last week end in Nevada City with his parents on Main street. Mr. O'Connor has been in the employ of the Pato Dredging company in South Africa and spent two years in that country. At present they are in San Francisco.

Robert Schiffner will leave Sunday for Berkeley to resume his studies at the University of California.

LABOR BOARD TO HOLD HEARING ON LAVA CAP VOTE

Madame Alice Rosseter, Regional Labor Board director in San Francisco, has assured Otto Schiffner, general manager of the Lava Cap mine that a hearing will be held very shortly to determine whether a majority of the Lava Cap miners desire to vote on the question of whether or not the CIO affiliate will continue as bargaining agency, or be superceded by the Mine Workers Protective League, or an independent group.

In the meantime the contract negotiated by the CIO affiliate over a year ago, expiring on August 1, will continue to control relations between the management and employes Mr. Schiffner stated, but as for its being automatically renewed for another year, that is nonsense. The CIO affiliate officers themselves have acknowledged that this claim, made a few days ago, is far fetched.

Mr. Schiffner states that Mrs. Rosseter is quite willing to put the question of which group shall be the bargaining agency to a vote, but does hold that there should be a reasonable assurance that the majority of the employes desire a vote before holding an election.

DAILY COST OF BOARD FOR PRISONERS $11.90

There are now 17 men in the county jail. They are given two meals a day at 35 cents per meal, which makes the total cost of feeding the prisoners $11.90 per day. Seventeen is now nearly an average figure for jail dwellers. Using this amount as an average daily expense for boarding jail inmates, the total per month amounts to $357.00.

FISH ARE BEING PLANTED IN NEV. COUNTY STREAMS

Captain A. H. Willard of the Fish and Game Commission stated last evening that fingerling trout are being planted in Nevada and Placer counties. Huge tank trucks carry the fish from the Shasta Hatchery to the Bear Valey tanks that were prepared last year and from that point they are taken by smaller trucks to streams and lakes. It is estimated 1,200,000 trout will be planted this year. Preston Bills and four men are employed at the Bear Valley plant. Mr. Bills had the same position last season.

Most of these trout will be planted in Nevada county and as soon as the work is completed trout will be taken to Amador county.

Captain Willard has been in the deer districts in western Colusa and Glenn counties since the opening of the season in that section. He stated several arrests for game violations had been made among them being two doe cases, a spike buck case and another hunter had too many dogs.

Since about the middle of this week he has been in the Lake Tahoe district patrolling around that area taking care of complaints that have come in from that district.

PEAR PICKING HAS STARTED

Pear picking started at the Breckenridge orchard below Grass Valley Wednesday morning this being the first in the district. Other orchards will be ready shortly. It is estimated there is a sound clean crop of this good fruit and the quantity will be about 80 per cent of normal. Pear picking should start in the Nevada City district in about another week.

The pears picked this week are being taken to the fruit sheds in Colfax. As soon as general picking starts the packing plant in Chicago Park and the Colfax Fruit Exchange in Grass Valley will open.

Miss Eleanor Vanberg of Grove street who has just returned from a vacation tour of about two months, is sad over the death of a pet fox terrier that was killed by a car Wednesday.

A Warning To Americans

A call to Americans to be on their guard against "revolutionary propaganda" from Communists was made in Boston recently by Senator Walsh of Massachusetts, one of the Democratic leaders of the Senate.

The Senator warned that Communists were working particularly within the schools of the nation. If this is so, and the head of the Communist Party recently admitted it, then it is the duty of every parent to inspect closely material of a radical nature which is infiltrated ever so skillfully into the public school system.

There are three types of Communists that must be watched, the Senator said—one, "a group of keen-minded college graduates and university professors—the most dangerous, for their philosophy is destroying the sanity of countless students; two, "the numerically insignificant but vocally strenuous" active party members, and three, the "somewhere between 3,000,000 and 4,000,000 border-line Communists.?

Not only in schools is this propaganda being directed, the Senator said, "but it is carried into colleges, labor societies, civic and fraternal units, business marts, youth centers, and, sad to relate, some religious bodies."

Senator Walsh has served in Congress for years. As chairman of the important Senate Committee on Labor and Education he has been in a position to know whereof he speaks. His words, therefore, are more than idle comment. They become a significant message of warning to Americans who believe in America.—Contributed.

Hill Billy Sense

Some folks have been making wisecracks because Govenor-Nominate W. Lee O'Daniel of Texas used a hillbilly band in his campaign. We hold no brief for him in particular and we are not interested in the political angles of his victory. But we wonder if some pertinent facts haven't been overlooked.

First, he was an undoubted success in his own private business. In these days when governments are trying to tell buinesses how to run, we think more public officials should be men with successful business backgrounds.

Second, one plank in his platform promised a $30 a month pension to all Texans over 65. Texas already had voted overwhelmingly for that, and the professional politicians once more couldn't make good on their promises.

Third, the key to his platform was the Ten Commandments. Things are already cluttered up with laws, and when one Congress alone enacts 1,759 new ones, we are inclined to wonder if the Ten Commandments wouldn't be enough.

Fourth, and most important, O'Daniel knows that you can't pull the good things of life out of the air. He says you can't "legislate prosperity." Instead, he wants factories in Texas pouring smoke out of their stacks, dollars out of their pay windows and goods out of their shipping platforms.

All of that sums up to us as pretty good sense. —Contributed.

Unconstitutional "Justice"

The sixth amendment of the Constitution of the United States says: ". . . the accused shall enjoy the right of a speedy and public trial, by an impartial jury . . . and to have the assistance of counsel for his defense."

Yet, the trial examiner for the National Labor Relations Board of Ohio has barred a steel company's counsel from a hearing into charges that the company was engaged in "unfair labor practices." The attorney was barred supposedly because he insisted that his exception to a ruling be noted in the records.

We could well understand such a disbarment in other countries where court procedure has been altered to suit the iron rule of dictators, but it is an unheard of precedent and a challenge to Constitutional government in America.—Contributed.

THE HORNETS' NEST

Just Wonderin'

I wonder when suddenly some one becomes
An unfortunate chap or a hero,
His stock soaring upward to brighten the skies,
Or dropping way down below zero.
And should I attempt some spectacular feat,
Where chance and grim fate are presiding,
I hope Lady Luck in her happiest mood,
With me will be amiably riding.

I wonder at the strange formulas for individual success invented by the ancients—especially poets; don't you remember committing certain rhythmic lines to memory and then burning quantities of midnight oil in the effort to prove them true? This speciment for instance—

"The heights by great men won and kept
Were not attained by sudden flight;
But they, while their companions slept
Were toiling upward in the night."

If the good poet were alive today and writing a success formula, he would be very apt to say:

The heights a modern youngster tops
Are now attained by speedy flights,
By making unannounced non-stops
And flying backward through the night.

Fame may come to many a plodder, even in this day of swirling events, but she stands ready to crown the person who can bedazzle the world with something spectacular, and unheralded. Indeed the motto of one newly acclaimed hero seems to be:

Hitch your junk heap to a star. Take your seat and there you are.

Corrigan comes home leading the world on a leash; great crowds roar stentorian acclaim as he goes by, gifts of fame, wealth and power fairly clutter his pathway. He isn't an actor, neither is he a public speaker, never mind, theatrical and radio producers will overwhelm him with fat contracts; he's not an author, but what of that? Ghost writers by scores will flock to his side begging for the privilege of expressing his modest ideas in impeccable English, which will be purchased by wealthy syndicating agencies and featured in the newspapers throughout the land; he may not know how to handle a sword, but presto! Over night he becomes a colonel; yes, Mr. Corrigan did rather well for himself when he answered the call of the shamrocks.

Will all this adulation spoil the young hero? I think not. He is an irrepressible and irresistible Irishman, blessed with a fine sense of humor, he's a Texan and a Californian. Psycologists might make much of this combination. I shall only venture the prediction, that, he will keep his head, and his humorous outlook upon life, and that he will not become dour or unduly egoistic; that he will be able at all times to meet his public with ease, poise and gracious courtesy, that he will give reporters and interviewers a break and that in the near future h,e will perform services which will redownd to his credit and benefit those who have admired his incomparable dash and daring.

Uncle Silas says: "I hear that some of our mature but thoughtless voters have a plan for betraying California for thirty pieces of cellophane, substituting for money and receivable weekly—or until the state goes bankrupt."

—A. MERRIAM CONNER.

HOME FROM MOTOR TRIP

A motor party that enjoyed visiting many national parks in a two weeks auto tour are Mrs. Lydia Gleason and daughter, Miss Jean Gleason, son, Donald Gleason, and daughter in law, Mrs. Grace Gleason. They returned early this week from a little over 4,000 miles of travel in delightful weather and no car troubles. The party visited Teton National Park, Wyoming; Yellowstone National Park, Glacier Park, Montana; Waterton Park, Canada; then a motor trip on through Alberta and British Columbia, back into Washington state into Rainier National park; through a portion of Idaho state, Crater Lake, Oregon, down the Redwood highway to Oakland. Donald Gleason left the party at Oakland. Miss Jean Gleason has a school at Broderick and will start teaching in September.

WARNER'S SACRAMENTO EXHIBIT WINS PRAISE

Clifford Warner, whose water colors of Nevada county scenes have won appreciation among all lovers of the historical and picturesque spots in this section, has just completed a successful exhibition of his paintings in the Crocker Art gallery in Sacramento. It is very probable that within the next few weeks he will open an exhibition in one of the universities of the state. The director of Crocker Art gallery reports that the Warner exhibit aroused much interest among Sacramento's art students and patrons of good painting.

CRACKPOTS PLAN THIRTY DOLLARS EVERY THURSDAY

By RALPH H. TAYLOR

"Thirty dollars every Thursday!"

It is an intriguing slogan—an inviting prospect, if you can bury your year in the economic sands and believe in it.

And apparently some 700,000 Californians did just that; for 700,000 Californians, according to official reports, signed petitions to submit the $30-every-week pension act to the voters at the November General Election.

Never in the history of the state have so many citnzens signed petitions for an initiative act as signed up for Thirty Dollars Every Thursday. It is an amazing and startling record—startling in that it means the act will have a good chance of approval at the polls unless voters look before they leap; startling, too, in that the measure, if it becomes law, wil play havoc with the state's financial structure and will start a stampede to California which will double and treble the rush of refugees now crossing our borders.

But perhaps the worst aspect of the new pension craze is that hundreds of thousands of old people who have high hopes of retirement, with a life anunity of $30 per week, will be bitterly disappointed and disillusioned—after parting with hard-earned dollars to finance a movement which is foredoomed to failure.

In the interest of humanity, if not in the interest of state solvency, it is to be hoped that the fallacy of the plan, is exposed long before election day and that the act is repudiated at the polls, instead of being invalidated in the courts, or collapsing of its own weight after an unsuccessful attempt to make it work.

Let's take a look at this act with the magic title.

If it became effective, all California citizens, 50 years of age or over and "not employed for compensatinn", would be eligible to receive 30 state-issued, one-dollar warrants, or certificates ,every Thursday.

Estimates of the number of people in California who would be eligible vary from 700,000 to 900,000, but promoters of the plan estimate that 500,0 persons would accept the pesion immediately. At $3 per week, they would be paid $15,000,000 a week. At the end of the first year, there would be $780,000,000 in the state certificates in circulation!

Theoretically, at least, the warrants, or certificates, would be retired each year by a 2-cent per week tax on each dollar certificate. But who would pay that tax? With $780,000,000 worth of the state warrants in circulation, it may be assumed that California merchants would have about $500,000,000 worth in their tills every Thursday—providing, of course, that merchants accepted them in exchange for merchandise, as the plan contemplates. At 2-cents per certificate, that would mean a weekly tax bill of $10,000,000 for California merchants on top of all other taxes.

But there is every likelihood—in fact, it is a virtual certainty—that banks would refuse to accept the certificates as "money," for the federal government reserves the exclusive right to issue money and banks are squeamish about their security. But consider some of the other practical problems: With "state money", not recognized in any other state, how could California merchants buy from out of state wholesalers or manufacturers? And if they couldn't turn the "money" into the bank, or use it to replenish their stocks, just what would they do with it? Certainly, farmers wouldn't accept "certificates" in lieu of cash for their commodities—for farmers have to be careful about m oney; they're not overly endowed with it.

There is grave probability, of course, that the Thirty Dollars Every Thursday plan would be declared unconstitutional in the courts if, by any chance, it should secure approval of the voters. But California can ill afford to gain the reputation of enacting crack-pot legislation which requires intervention of the federal government to save it from financial ruin. Nor can it afford to invite a new stampede from other states. California taxpayers should render a smashing "NO" vedict on this proposal—and farmers should lead the procession!

CINEMA STAR OF FRANCE IN FILM DRAMA SUNDAY

"Danielle Darrieux!"

The ivory inlaid pen which inscribed that signature at the bottom of a motion picture contract 18 months ago in Paris, started in motion one of the most elaborate operations in the world of motion enterprise—the making of a feature film.

It put 3000 men and women to work at Universal studios, skilled technicians, carpenters, designers, painters, property men, fashion artists, seamstresses, film editors, cameramen writers, and provided jobs for hundreds of extra players in her debut film, Universal's "The Rage of Paris," coming Sunday to the Nevada Theatre.

That signature (very round and bold for such a diminutnve signer) placed on the dotted line of that lucrative long term contract, marked the pinnacle to date, of one of the most amazing careers in the rather fabulous history of the cinema. A few years ago, Danielle Darrieux was a fourteen year old girl in a quiet Parisian neighborhood, reading her school books and practicing the violincello. Then, just on the spur of the inspiration, she answered an ad in a newspaper for a child actress in a film, "Le Bal," and got the job.

From thence proceeded a parade of triumph. One hit film after the other. Star role on star role, culminating with the prize winning "Mayerling." A whirlwind courtship and marriage at seventeen to Henry Decoin, one of France's leading scenarists and dramatists. A furor-creating debut on the Paris stage. And now, Hollywood stardom at twenty one.

FOREST FIRES IN JULY TOTAL 470

Four hundred seventy forest fires resulting from three weeks of almost daily lightning storms in northern California were under control this week, according to reports from U. S. Forest Service headquarters, California region. The heavy concentration of lightning-caused fires established a new all-time record for one continuous series of lightning fires during the 33 year period of national forest administration in California.

Approximately 20,000 acres were burned before forest service officers, CCC enrollees and local fire fighters could control the outbreaks.

Starting the afternoon of July 13, the "dry" lightning storms progressed throughout the northern California forest area including the Coast and Siskiyou Ranges, the Mt. Shasta Region, the southern Cascades and the northern Sierra Nevada. At the end of the disastrous series of general and then more localized storms, Supervisor Tom Jones and staff of the Klamath National Forest had directed fire fighters on 225 blazes. Many of them flamed in almost inaccessible regions of the back country.

The most disastrous of the fires was the Rep Cap Creek conflagration 12 miles south of Somes Bar. At the end of the three week's battle the fire had blackened a 10,000 acre area which fire fighters described a "straight up ond down." Fires at Slide Creek and Red Mountain also developed into major blazes before being controlled, burning 3,000 and 500 acres respectively.

Food supplies, camp equipment and fire fighting implements were dropped to fire camps by parachute from rented carge airplanes. In some instances bears made off with needed rations before fire fighters could retrieve the packages. Fire line reports stated that many crates of eggs wrapped in loaves of bread were dropped without mishap to a single egg

Trinity National Forest fire fighters battled 55 scattered fires during the storm period. At Bear Wallow high winds fanned the flames out of control in the upper region of the South Fork of the Trinity river, one of the state's most rugged areas. Supply laden planes serviced the fire fighters for a short while before a truck trail was built in record time to one of the fire camps near Cooper Mine.

The Shasta National Forest headquarters staff and field officers had a stiff battle with 85 fires but none became serious. More than 100 blazes were controlled in early stages in northern California on the Tahoe, Plumas, Eldorado, Mendocino, Lassen, Stanilsaus, Sierra and Modoc National Forests and the San Brenardino Forest of southern California.

Despite the hazardous working conditions along the fire line an unusually low number of accidents occurred. No fatal injuries were reported from any of the fires burning in the state.

Enrollees of the Civilian Conservation Corps continued to uphold the spirit of their work by proving indispensable in helping to effect the control of the fires to which they were assigned. The courage and unceasing work of 1000 enrollees in the face of flames and smoke brought words of admiration from old time forest service officers directing the attacks. One hundred twenty five overhead personnel were dispatched from ten national forest headquarters and the San Francisco regional office to supplement the depleted supervisory forces of both the Klamath and Trinity forests.

AUGUST BADE TO LEAD BIRD BREEDING BUREAU

SUSANVILLE, (Lassen Co.), Aug. 11.—The state fish and game commission, concluding a one day session here, announced today the state's extensive game bird breeding program henceforth will be conducted under the supervision of a separate bureau.

August Bade, veteran game bird authority, and superintendent of California state game farms since 1925, will head the new unit.

At the conclusion of the 1938 season commission members said, 34,000 pheasants, 10,000 quail and 8,000 partridges will have been distributed.

Mrs. C. B. O'Connor, Sr., returned last week from several weeks visit with a son and family in Washington. She had a most delightful time visiting many places of interest. Her granddaughter, Miss Betty O'Connor of Grass Valley, is now spending a vacation in San Francisco.

INFLUX OF DUST BOWL REFUGEES IS U. S. PROBLEM

Governor Frank F. Merriam has consistently attempted to have the federal government recognize that care of penniless migrant hordes coming into California from the dust bowl states was and is a federal problem.

This was the statement today of Bradford M. Melvin, northern California campaign manager for the governor.

Said Melvin:

"Governor Merriam was one of the first to recognize that the influx of these transient people was a threat to the state financial structure as well as a menace to the health of all Californians.

"In his message to the 1937 legislature, the governor said: 'Because it is evident that the movement of unemployed and indigent transients into this state will not materially decrease during the next two years, and it is likewise evident that the interstate migration of such persons is essentially a national and not a state problem, the legislature of California has been requested to ask the president and the congress to make provisions for reimbursing the state for the care of such transients. It is desirable from the standpoint of efficient administration that the National Government take over this problem and administer it exclusively as a federal responsibility.'

"Following the governor's message, Assembly Joint Resolution No. 11 was adopted by the legislature.

"The resolution, pointed out that 'There has not been and is not sufficient seasonal or permanent employment for transients entering the state' and that 'it would be financially impossible for the state of California to extend aid.'

"The resolution further urged that 'the president of the United States and the congress take cognizance of the problem of care of the unsettled population of the nation as a national matter.'

"At the special session this year, the legislature adopted Senate Joint Resolution No. 5 pointing out that the problem of relief for non-residents of the state of California has 'reached alarming proportions' and urged that Congress find ways and means 'for the return of unemployable indigent transients to the state of their legal settlement.'

The federal government did not act.

"The governor is watching with closest interest the steps being taken by private and semi-official groups to find ways and means of handling this gigantic problem. I am sure that he will be only too glad to lend his good offices to any feasible plan that may be worked out."

Gilbert and daughters, Miss Phyllis Jean Gilbert and Miss Beverley Lou Gilbert, of Alhambra. Mr. and Mrs. Tourtlotte will return to Big Creek where is is employed by the P. FIRE AT COLUMBIA HILL

Ranger W. F. Sharp, State Division of Forestry, and crew were called to the Columbia Hill district Wednesday to a fire that burned a house belonging to Coughlan Brothers to the ground. The Taylor family had rented the building a few days before and moved into it. Monday, Mr. Taylor cleaned up and burned trash pile in the yard and thought she had extinguished the fire. It had evidently smouldered and flared up to spread to the house.

BETTING ODDS ON CANDIDATES

The McClatchy News Service reports betting odds as follows:

Governor Merriam variously at 2 to 1 and 10 to 8 over Hatfield for the Republican gubernatorial nomination.

Olson 2 to 1 for the Democratic governorship nomination.

No money being offered on whether Olson or Raymond Haight, independent fusion candidate will take the Progressive party nomination for governor.

United States Senator William G. McAdoo 2 1-2 to 1 favorite for the Democratic renomination.

Railroad Commissioner Ray L. Riley 10 to 7 over Philip Bancroft for the Republican nomination for United States senator.

Even money that Halght does not poll 200,000 votes on the Republican, Democratic and Progressive tickets.

Even money that Merriam's margin over his nearest GOP opponent will be 10,000 votes, with the same bet offered on Olson in the Democratic field.

HIGHWAY MEN MEET IN RENO

RENO, Aug. 11.—Delegates to the convention here of the Western Association of State Highway Officials heard addresses on various phases of highway traffic problems and on safety factors and tonight were to visit Lake Tahoe and banquet at Cel-Neva, Lodge.

United States Senator P. A. McCarran is listed as the principal speaker at the banquet.

W. E. Palmer, president of Associated General Contractors, yesterday discussed the question of organized labor in highway work. He declared well established customs on highway construction fit much more readily into the so called vertical, or industrial, union scheme than into the craft union system.

Palmer pointed out that the spread of organized labor on highway work in rural areas was a new development; that it presages new problems for the contractor, for the highway official and for labor itself.

Dr. L. I. Hewes, deputy chief engineer for the United States Bureau of Public Roads in a report on progress, called attention throughout his talk to the increase of trucks on the highways and said this subject has called for serious consideration of all highway officials as well as truck drivers.

"We must look forward to the time when all highway operating revenue will be required for upkeep and reconstruction," he told the delegates.

The only other address yesterday was that of Ray McKaig of Idaho, on the need of western agriculture for highway transportation. A banquet for both delegates and women was held last night.

San Francisco and Portland are seeking the 1939 convention of the association, but to date there has been no intensive drive on the part of either city.

N.I.D. SEEKS PWA LOAN FOR SCOTT FLAT RESERVOIR

The Board of Directors of Nevada Irrigation District has made application to Public Works Administration for a loan and grant for the purpose of constructing the Scotts Flat Reservoir approximately four miles above Nevada City and the Combe-Ophir Canal, a canal approximately ten miles in length in Placer county. The amount of the loan and grant is $460,000 of which $207,000 is applied for as a grant and $253,000 as a loan.

The construction of these two projects will increase the district's income by approximately $21,000, which amount will be used to repay the loan applied for in approximately sixteen years, together with interest at four per cent.

Provisions were made for the financing of such a loan in the recent refinancing of the district's bonded indebtedness. The loan applied for will be evidenced by a bond issue in the amount of the loan, but due to the above mentioned arrangements for financing the loan, no increases will be necessary in the assessments on land within the district, nor will calls be made upon the revenues of the district now being used for its operation and maintenance.

The net result of the construction work proposed will be to increase the district's income for the last twenty five years under the agreements with Pacific Gas and Electric company by approximately $28,000 over what such income would be if the construction work now contemplated were not done at this time.

ALASKA'S NEED IS ORDERLY PLAN FOR THE FUTURE

By ROYAL ARCH GUNNISON
Staff Correspondent of The Christian Science Monitor

JUNEAU, Alaska—Orderly development and intelligent planning—these are the keys to Alaska's future. Until comparatively recently in Alaska's 71 year period under the Stars and Stripes there was little order in the vast territory's development and less planning.

After a 7000 mile trip up the coast and into the interior of this northernmost possession of Uncle Sam's one cannot but be deeply impressed with the necessity for expert, intelligent direction and "conservation for use" planning for so rich a country.

None are so wide awake to this as Alaskans themselves. In innumerable talks with Alaskans from Gov. John W. Troy and officials here to trappers, traders, miners, housewives and airplane pilots in all sections of the territory the plea and the demand is the same:

"Give Alaska its opportunity for orderly development along with other parts and possessions of the United States in proportion to Alaska's value in competition with these other areas to the United States."

And here it is that Alaska—with almost all outgo of rich resources from fish and fur to gold, copper and platinum, and little income of Federal assistance until recently—wields its strongest argument.

Indication that Alaska's demand for its "due" portion of Federal assistance, not only in money but in intelligent, organization and planning—which is not to be mistaken in any sense for "regimentation"—is being realized, may be seen perhaps more vividly this summer than ever before through visits by prominent Federal officials.

Anyone who reads his morning or evening paper in the States has no doubt noticed an occasional small squib about Postmaster General James A. Farley's present trip along the coast of Alaska. Furthermore, Dr. Frank Gruening, Director of the Division of Territories and Island Possessions of the Interior Department, is in Alaska this summer, probing, listening, learning the need of the 586,400 square miles of frontier which since 1867 has poured over $2,000,000,000 into the United States.

Mr. Farley and Dr. Gruening are both in a position to throw their influence toward more efficient administration of the Territory.

Each tourist season one or two Congressmen, or a United States Senator or so, visit Alaska. This helps to bring into focus the value of proper, neither over nor under, development of the area, the impetus for which necessarily must come from Washington nearly 4000 miles distant.

Alaska is governer by six of the Cabinet departments, most potent of which is the Interior as far as Alaska is concerned. These departments must get appropriations from congress to develop their slice of the Alaskan pie, and generally their shares of the appropriation have been shaved pretty thin by the time Alaska comes around.

Thus it is a bit easier to understand why orderly development along wise and efficient paths is of the utmost import for Alaska instead of a more complicated bureaucratic control. Therefore, when party and department heads come to Alaska, as they similarly travel to Hawaii, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands and the Philippine Islands—they become more familiar with the problems peculiar to the Territory and progress eventually results.

The United States is beginning to realize how fortunate it is to possess so rich a storehouse of natural resources as Alaska and one of the first indications in many years that "something is going to be done about it" was last winter's report by the Alaska Committee of the National Resources Committee. Requested by Presidet Roosevelt to be finished within five months, the report was scarcely anything — but a surface study.

Recommendations were withheld by those on the Alaska Committee who knew how ineffectual it would be to try to present any plans to congressional committees without deeper and more accurate study. But the report while generally deplored, in Alaska is nevertheless seen here as a "step in the right direction"—to quote a Rooseveltian phrase. The factual section of the report was hailed where the non-committal recommendation part was approved as "the best thing to do" until a more complete study can be made. A more thorough review and positive recommendations, it is learned from the best of sources, will be forthcoming within the next two years.

SKI COACH FOR JUNIOR COLLEGE YOUNGSTERS

Earl L. Larson will become the adviser and coach of the Placer Junior College Ski Club when he reports for duty on the faculty of the Placer Junior College late this month.

Larson, a commercial teacher, was employed at the Yuba Junior College in Marysville last year.

The new coach will have one veteran back in the person of James Meyers, the jumper and slalom expert, who placed at the Yosemite Intercollegiate last season and who captured the jumping event at the Vanderbile Cup competition near Norden last spring.

NEW BUS FOR JUNIOR COLLEGE STUDENTS

Dr. John H. Napier, Jr., district superintendent of Placer Junior College, this week announced a new 49 passenger International school bus will be placed on the run between Auburn and Nevada county when school opens August 29.

The bus will have a Gillig custom built body. The bus will be operated free of charge to the students from Nevada county attending Placer Junior College. The bus will be kept overnight at Nevada City, coming to Grass Valley and proceeding to Auburn.

The bus will be driven by a junior college student still to be named. George McElroy, last year's driver, died last month in Roseville. Howard Woodside, member of the faculty has been designated to examine applicants for the position, and make a recommendation to the administration.

The new bus was ordered at the July meeting of the school board, and will be delivered before the opening of the school year. Nevada county last year was second to Placer in number of students enrolled.

CANDIDATE FOR ASSEMBLY GIVEN HIGH PRAISE

The North Sacramento Journal has a sketch of John S. Lawson, candidate for the assembly from this, the sixth district. Excerpts from it follow:

If the pioneers of North Sacramento were to offer a prize to the person who has been the most valuable citizen in the growth of the community, that prize would unquestionably go to John S. Lawson. He came to North Sacramento before it was an incorporated area, before there was gas b,efore there were any booster or service clubs; in fact, he established a plumbing establishment here while North Sacramento was still just a wide spot on the highway to Auburn. He didn't just establish himself as another spoke in the wheel of progress, but, instead, became the hub, by which eveything of interest to the pogress of this section hinged around him. He might be compared with the man who is the "sparkplug" on a football team; as long as he is in the game the team has life and forges ahead. Looking back in the early twenties we see Jack Lawson leading the fight to replace the old wooden trestle between this section and the city of Sacramento with a modern highway, and again in the battle to replace the old kerosene stoves with modern gas. Both of these fights were won.

Interested in flying, he was president of the Sacramento Aviation club; he worked on the plan to establish a municipal airport in the city of Sacramento now located on Freeport boulevard. Believing in publicity for the community, he instigated, sponsored, and put over two community fairs, which advertised North Sacramento area throughout the state. His politics are Republican and while here he was elected to the county central committee with the largest vote ever cast for one individual. Now he is a candidate for the assembly from the Sixth district, and if the people of that section are aware of only a quarter of his activieies and accomplishments. North Sacramento's loss may be the Sixth district's gain.

BROTHERHOODS OF R. R. ENDORSE ENGLEBRIGHT

The national legislative offices of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, the Order of Railway Conductors, the Brotherhood of Firemen and Enginemen, the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employes, and the Brotherhood of Railway Signal Men of America, have issued the following endorsement of Harry Englebright's candidacy for re-election to his post in the House of Representatives:

"Occasionally we have an opportunity to show our appreciation for outstanding merit on the part of those who enact the laws of our country. Such an opportunity is now presented to us in the candidacy for re-election of your U. S. Representative in Congress, Honorable Harry L. Englebright. Throughout his seven terms of distinguished service he has maintained an excellent record for ability, integrity and impartiality. We have found him on the right side of every major question, and while he is a powerful friend of all who toil in whatever field, he is equally fair to all legitimate interests. The welfare of all his people is his constant concern, and he has never failed our Brotherhoods. On his exceptionally fine record in congress he merits the strong support of every voter in the Second District regardless of party affiliations.

"We strongly urge that you all take an active and personal interest in the nomination and re-election of Representative Englebright to the position he has so ably filled for fourteen years. In the language of one of our greatest statesmen, now gone to his reward, "It takes many years of experience to make a Congressman." Our friend has had these many years of active experience and intensive training in the complex work of national legislation. Sound judgment and seasoned experience, coupled with the high esteem in which he is held by his fellows members, have placed him as an influential member of the important House Committees on Flood Control, Mines and Mining, Public Lands, and Territories. You cannot afford to take any chance of losing the powerful prestige of seniority and position which your representative has established for the Second District and the State of California.

"We trust you to handle this matter with all expedition and efficiency to the end that all our members, their families and friends, as well as all other working men and women in the second district, go to the polls and vote, at both the Primary on August 30 and the general election in November, and return to Congress our good friend, Honorable Harry L. Englebright."

WARREN WOULD BAR GAMBLING OF ANY KIND

Horse racing, with its attendant evils, book making and pari-mutuel betting, is bad for the state, and the vicious law which allows it should be repealed, it was stated today by Earl Warren, Non-Partisan candidate for Attorney General.

"The race tracks draw many men and women who place money they can ill afford on the horses. As a result they do not pay their bills, and our storekeepers and creditors suffer," Mr. Warren said in his statement.

"I believe that it would be to the best interests of the state to repeal the law that allows racing. It seems to be almost impossible for the police to stamp out the bookmaking racket, and thousands of bookies prey on workers who really can't afford the money they spend. I can cite many instances where wage earners spent their entire week's wages in a single afternoon, and the sufferers were of course, their families."

Expanding on his theme, the candidate added that in his opinion the ecent ruling of the incumbent Attorney General to the effect that draw poker does not come under the law as a game of chance, is wrong.

"Poker in any form is a game of chance," he said.

Warren pointed to his county, Alameda county, as an example of example of moral cleanliness. Slot machines and other gambling devices, he pointed out, were cleaned out years ago.

"I shall see, as the state's chief law enforcement officer," he concluded, "that the entire state is cleaned up."

Dr. J. B. Hardie of Alleghany was a business visitor in Nevada City Tuesday.

WHY NOT EMPLOY A TRAINED CORONER?

A presumption, apart from evidence, may be often determined in certain cases by the fact that a very large number of deaths is caused by accident during occupation or while bathing or boating, or of set purpose, as in suicide. It must not be forgotten that a body may be thrown into the water to cloak the commission of crime in another form. Presumption is of no value whatever when an examination of the body will indicate proof. The question often arises: Was the person dead or alive before the body was submerged in the water? Only a Doctor who is trained and qualified can determine this question.

There are in addition certain medico-legal forms of death from causes which usually form the subject of criminal investigation. Among these are the following: Death by drowning, by suffocation, by hanging, strangulation, and throttling, by lightning and electricity, by burning and scalding, by criminal neglect and starvation, by cold and exposure, by heat apoplexy, and by mortal wounds. Who is better qualified to determine these causes—a Doctor who is Coroner or a layman?

Place the Coroner's Office in the hands of a Professional man where it rightfully belongs. Your support will be appreciated.

Riversides Win..
Yes, Riversides, "stock" Riversides (bought right here in Wards store) win more auto races than any other tire! Race Drivers buy Riversides because they've learned that these "stock" tires are America's safest.

"MASTER-ETCHINGS" by Fostoria

MAYFLOWER . . . ETCHED IN THE REMBRANDT MANNER

Greatest of all etchers, living or dead, Rembrandt experimented on many materials. But he never learned the secret of etching on glass! Nevertheless, his extraordinary genius made "Master-Etchings" possible.

Following the Rembrandt methods, Fostoria craftsmen adapted the etching process to glass; introduced new crystal decorations for your table.

Newest of these is the Mayflower design; a delicate and aristocratic hand etching on crystal. For a favorite gift to your favorite bride, we recommend Mayflower in stemware, accessory pieces, or for a complete table service. Any and all are exquisite, but never expensive. Indeed, every "Master-Etching" rightfully proclaims "There is nothing finer than Fostoria."

GALAXY OF SONG ARTISTS COMING TO SACRAMENTO

The San Francisco Opera Company in its first venture outside of San Francisco and Los Angeles, will bring to the Sacramento Memorial Auditorium Lily Pons, world's greatest colortura soprano, and five other outstanding sigers of the Metropolitan Opera of New York supported by its full company in a performance of Donizetti's opera Luria Di Lammermoor the evening of October 27.

In the leading roles will be Thelma Votipka, soprano; Calliano Masini, tenor, and Carlo Tagliabue, baritone—all new faces and new voices to Pacific Coast opera goers; and two favorites of past seasons, Ludovico Oliviero, tenor and Norman Cordon, bass baritone.

These five, with Miss Pons, will sing the famous Sextet from Lucia, one of the best loved selections in operatic literature.

The Sacramento performance will be a step toward the realization of a dream of Gaetano Morola, general director of the San Francisco Opera Company, who envisions a time when his opera company will give an extended season in all the principal cities of the west coast. from Seattle to San Diego.

This plan of expansion is encouraged by the heavy demand for tickets to the San Francisco season. Choice seats have become so scarce that Ware and Hazelton who manage the Music Series attractions, report requests coming from San Francisco for tickets to the Sacramento performance.

Reservations for season tickets are being received by Sidney Camp at Ye Music Shoppe in Sacramento. Single admissions for the opera will go o sale September 15, but mail orders received before that time will be given preference as to location.

The other events on the series are Daniel Fricourt, pianist, November 5; the reorganized and enlarged Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo, Feb. 6; Gregor Piatigorsky, cellist, Feb. 11; and Igor Gorin, baritone, March 7.

ENGINEER GIVES DEFINITION OF "ORE IN SIGHT"

In reply to an inquiry, Mr. H. P. Davis, mining engineer and consultant of this city, has given the Nugget the following definition of "ore in sight" or "blocked out."

"The terms 'ore in sight,' or 'blocked out', 'assured mineral reserves and ore reserves,' are quite often carelessly or even erroneously used.

"Ore in sight" or "blocked out" has been defined by Kirby Thomas an old associate of mine, as follows:

"Ore disclosed between drifts and shafts (or winzes) so that it can be measured on the assumption that if exposed on four sides or three sides it presumably exists in the body of the stope the same as in the exposures. If exposed on two sides, it it counted as in sight to the extent of one half the contents of the stope. Ore between drift, shaft and surface is ore in sight after allowance for depth of slide. Ore exposed on only one side is not ore in sight."

Any estimate of ore reserves (ore in sight or blocked out) in connection with the narrow and somewhat erratic ore bodies of this district, should be a conclusion based on an engineer's judgment and knowledge of the characteristics of the ore deposits of this area, a minimum rather than an ultimate quantity.
